It was early 1985 when a group of friends / Professional Engineers having vast international experience in multiple fields on Middle East Development Projects got together with the determination to establish a platform in Pakistan capable of delivering a high quality Engineering and construction services of international standards for various projects in Pakistan and abroad. Therefore a firm named Transenergy International was registered under 1932 partnership act and then later on converted into a private limited company in 1988 with the intention to mainly undertake power transmission network projects and associated building/civil works. But during the time of being in power construction business for about a decade, the company also had to undertake the telecommunication network projects. Then it was 1993 when it was decided to register another company Transtel International for doing purely telecommunication projects. For quite a considerable period of few years, both the com
